A word and number arrangement machine when given an input line of words and numbers rearranges them following a particular rule in each step. The following is an illustration of input and rearrangement. (All the numbers are two-digit numbers and all are arranged as per some logic based on the value of the number.)

Input: win 56 32 93 baffle for 46 hollow 28 11 give chance
Step I: 93 56 32 baffle for 46 hollow 28 11 give chance win
Step II:11 93 56 32 baffle for 46 28 give chance win hollow
Step III: 56 11 93 32 baffle for 46 28 chance win hollow give Step IV: 28 56 11 93 32 baffle 46 chance win hollow give for
Step V:46 28 56 11 93 32 baffle win hollow give for chance
Step VI: 32 46 28 56 11 93 win hollow give for chance baffle
Step VI is the last step of the arrangement the above input.
As per the rules followed in the above steps, find out in each of the following questions the appropriate steps for the given input.

Input: friend 89 at the 28 16 base cunning 35 53 here 68

Q46. Which of the following would be step II?
(a) 89 friend at 28 16 base cunning 35 53 here 68 the

A manufacturing company 'ABC' produces a product which has five months demand cycle.

In January, units demanded are 100 more than that is demanded in May. Units demanded in April and March is half and twice of the units demanded in May respectively. Units demanded in February are 25% more than that is demanded in March.

Average units demanded in five months are equal to total units demanded in January.

Working days/month: Average of working days/month in these five months is 20.8 days. Working days in January is equal to total working days in May and working days in February, March and April are equal which is 2 days less than that in May.

Company maintains safety stock of 20% of total units demanded in that particular month and each month safety stock becomes the opening stock for the next month and opening stock for January is 30 units.

→ Production required = Demand + safety stock − opening stock

Q56. Find the ratio of opening stock of April to the safety stock of February month.

Directions (101-107): Read the following passage, divided into number of paragraphs, carefully and answer the questions given below it. Certain words are given in bold to help you locate them while answering some of the questions.

Paragraph 01: IT'S LIKE READING Dostoevsky on a bad summer day. There are so many tormented souls out there caught in a morality play. Its emotional intensity is only matched by the inevitability of the questions it raises about country, religion, power, and retribution. It's big, shapeless, chaotic, and in the end, a rewarding experience of the imagination. But then, you're not reading the Great Russian. You're living in, dare I say, a creative phase of politics. Rich in ideas and arguments, intense in its interplay of passions, nuanced in its undertones of morality and ethics, and ambitious in its pursuit of freedom, politics today, as a genre in creativity, is as good as the original works in other realms of the human mind, be it fiction or philosophy.

Paragraph 02: A sign of the times could be the profusion of political titles in publishing. They are mostly built on the themes of populism, outsiderhood, globalisation and resentment. Hardly a week passes without a full-length review in the Books pages on yet another tome on a world gone astray, a world that's being led to an incendiary denouement by revolutionaries and revisionists. The moment deserves such interventions because, by common intellectual consensus, in the evolution of post-World War II politics, we are at the next history-shifting stage after 1989, Europe's annus mirabilis.

Paragraph 03: Then, the stage was an extension of literature: what was imagined in a controlled society sought freedom as the Lie unravelled. In the Russia once imagined by Gogol, and lately reclaimed by Solzhenitsyn, the sight of the last general secretary of the Soviet Union letting the empire crack and go away needed another prophet, another novelist. Elsewhere, in a vassal state, revolution earned an adjective as romantic as 'velvet', and in the vanguard of its freedom struggle were writers and singers. In the end, the philosopher would be king. It was a time when an idea that promised man an alternative more liberating than religion proved to be history's biggest ghost story.

Paragraph 04: Today, it's the idea of freedom, as it has always been, that propels politics. It's a different cast. No figures larger than their historical size. No one is pretending to be the last arbiter of our destiny. And no one is talking in a language that would be taught to generation after generation. The disappearance of grandeur from the arena even prompted some pundits a while ago to wail over the death of politics. This moment in politics has an overwhelming sense of ordinariness about it. The new salvation theologians are all ordinary guys, tapping into the fears of people who have lost their balance in a world moving at a pace they cannot cope with. They can easily be categorised into types.

Paragraph 05: 'Outsider' has already become a worn-out word, and most totemic outsiders are today insiders. That's what power does to usurpers. Still, the angry legions in affluent societies can still afford messiahs, and there's no sign that the people are getting less angry. The outsider, the undisputed protagonist of the political drama, is born from the rotten remains of politics as usual. He is a rejoinder to the three big 'E's that cause resentment: Establishment, Entrenchment and Entitlement. Where career politicians embody the status quo, the outsider sells tomorrow, as revolutionaries had done before. There is a difference. In the earlier revolutionary texts, the past is a country without glory, and invariably a horror story. In contrast, the outsider romances nostalgia, the future is the past restored in glory. 'Make America Great Again' is the slogan that took Donald Trump to the White House, and it is a sentiment in which the longing for a golden yesterday strengthens the struggle for a fantastic tomorrow.

Q101. What does the author mean by the phrase "a creative phase of politics"?
(I) Politics today, as a genre in creativity, is as good as the original works in other realms of the human mind, be it fiction or philosophy.
(II) Politics today, as on moral and creative ground, is big, shapeless, chaotic, and in the end, a rewarding experience of the imagination.
(III) Politics today is rich in ideas and arguments, fervent in its interplay of passions and nuanced in its undertones of morality and ethics.
(a) Only (I) is correct
(b) Only (II) is correct
(c) Both (I) and (II) are correct
(d) Both (I) and (III) are correct
(e) All are correct

(II) Outsiderhood, Globalisation and Antagonism
(III) Contentment, Hostility and Communism
(a) Only (I) is correct
(b) Only (II) is correct
(c) Both (I) and (II) are correct
(d) Both (I) and (III) are correct
(e) All are correct

Q104. Which of the following statements summarizes the Paragraph 04 in the best possible manner?
(a) Modern politics has evolved after the death of primeval politics and it finds no relevance from its classical glory as the idea of freedom and the sense of ordinariness have substituted the core ideologies.
(b) In an unequal world the old bipolarity of politics has ceased to work, for the Left and the Right have not only lost the social space, they have lost the argument to a new set of liberators for whom it is not ideology that matters but ideas that feed on resentment.
(c) The importance and culture of politics has diminished since the arrival of ordinary people on the arena that witnessed the death of ancient political ideologies.
(d) As history choreographs a heady piece of politics, a certain amount of pessimism has taken over the fears of people who have lost their balance in a world moving at a pace they cannot cope with.
(e) None of the above.

Q105. What according to the author is/are the major cause(s) of indignation to the modern politics?
(I) The failure of modern politics to recover old ideologies from the system which used to be the defining stature of historical glory.
(II) The three big 'E's that describe the existence of pillars on which modern politics is built - Establishment, Entrenchment and Entitlement.
(III) The revolution that saw the advancement of new philosophers and salvation theologians who form the arrival of new ideologies and dogmas in the system.
(a) Only (I) is correct
(b) Only (II) is correct
(c) Only (III) is correct
(d) Both (I) and (II) are correct

Formal dispute settlement at the WTO is a last-resort option. Many differences between Members are unlikely ever to become an issue at the WTO, and even if they do, they will not necessarily trigger formal dispute settlement procedures. Some issues are settled at the committee level or defused in that context. The WTO Secretariat cannot challenge any Member. It has no right to prosecute. It is up to governments to decide whether or not to bring a dispute against another government to the WTO. And it is also entirely up to the complainant to argue its case. The dispute is only between governments, and only about alleged failures to comply with WTO agreements or commitments.

Settling disputes is the responsibility of the Dispute Settlement Body (DSB). The DSB has sole authority to establish "panels" of experts to consider the case, and to adopt the panels' findings or the results of an appeal. It monitors the implementation of the rulings and recommendations of panels and the Appellate Body, and has the power to authorize retaliation when a country does not comply with a ruling.

The World Trade Organization (WTO) is a relatively new international organization. However, it is responsible for a system that is over 50 years old. Established on 1 January 1995, the WTO replaced the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), which dated back to 1948. One of the most profound changes introduced by the transition from GATT to WTO in 1995 was the agreement to implement a dispute settlement process that would be speedier and more "automatic", with fixed deadlines. This Agreement is set out in the WTO Understanding on Rules and Procedures Governing the Settlement of Disputes (the "Dispute Settlement Understanding or the "DSU"). It is more automatic in the sense that the dispute settlement process, including the adoption of the final panel report and the authorization of sanctions in case of non-compliance, can only be blocked if there is a consensus to do so (sometimes referred to as "reversed consensus"). Previously, under the GATT, it took a consensus among all countries to adopt the report – hence the "losing" party to the dispute could always block an unfavourable ruling.

In a first stage, the DSU requires countries in dispute to consult with each other to see if they can settle their differences by themselves (for at least 60 days). Parties can also agree to ask the WTO Director-General to mediate. Mediation, conciliation and good offices may be requested at any time in parallel to the dispute settlement process. If the consultations between the parties fail, the complaining country can ask for a panel to be appointed.

Panels resemble arbitral tribunals, the composition of which is normally also under the control of the parties to the dispute. Only if the two sides cannot agree does the WTO director-general appoint them. Panels consist of three (occasionally five) experts from different countries, who examine the evidence. Panel and Appellate Body findings have to be based on the agreements cited and should normally be given to the parties to the dispute within nine months from the establishment of the panel.

In general, after two hearings with the parties (and technical experts, if necessary), the panel submits the descriptive sections of its report (facts and arguments) for comments to the parties. This is followed by an "interim report" also submitted to the parties for review, and then, the final report, which is first submitted to the parties and then later circulated to all WTO Members. Subsequently, the final report is passed to the DSB, which can only reject the report by consensus. The report becomes the DSB's ruling or recommendation within 60 days and is posted on the WTO website.

Panel reports can be appealed. The Appellate Body can hear on appeal only points of law decided by panels. Generally, the Appellate Body is not allowed to review facts of the case, as determined by the panel, or examine any evidence. Each appeal is heard by three members of a quasi-permanent seven-member Appellate Body set up by the DSB. The Appellate Body can uphold, modify or reverse the panel's legal findings and conclusion, and proceedings should normally not last more than 90 days. When a case has been appealed, the DSB has to adopt the reports of the Appellate Body and of the panel (as amended, reversed or upheld) within 30 days from the circulation of the Appellate Body report; rejection is only possible by consensus.

The Dispute Settlement Understanding stresses that "prompt compliance with recommendations or rulings of the DSB is essential in order to ensure effective resolution of disputes to the benefit of all Members". If a country is found to be at fault with the rules, it is expected to promptly correct the measure at issue. Moreover, it must state its intention to do so at a DSB meeting held within 30 days of the report's adoption. If immediate compliance with the recommendation proves impractical, the country will be allowed a "reasonable period of time". If it fails to act within this period, it has to enter into negotiations with the complaining country (or countries) in order to determine temporary compensation – for instance, tariff reductions in areas of particular interest to the complaining side. There is no financial compensation. If no satisfactory compensation is agreed, the complaining side may ask the DSB for permission to impose limited trade sanctions ("suspend concessions or obligations") against the other side. If requested the DSB must grant this authorization WTO Arbitration on the level of such sanctions can also be requested if the parties do not agree.

The DSB monitors how adopted rulings are implemented, and any outstanding case remains on its agenda until the issue is resolved.

Q131. North Korea's leader pledges to denuclearise the peninsula
(I) North Korean leader Kim Jong-un has pledged to denuclearise and meet U.S. officials, China said on Wednesday after a historic meeting with President Xi Jinping, who promised China would uphold friendship with its isolated neighbour. North Korea's KCNA news agency made no mention of Mr. Kim's pledge to denuclearise, or his anticipated meeting with U.S. President Donald Trump that is planned for some time in May.
(II) After two days of speculation, China and North Korea both confirmed that Mr. Kim had travelled to Beijing and met Mr. Xi during what China called an unofficial visit from Sunday to Wednesday. It is our consistent stand to be committed to denuclearization on the peninsula, in accordance with the will of late President Kim Il-sung and late General Secretary Kim Jong-il," Kim Jong-un said, according to the ministry.

(III) "The issue of denuclearisation of the Korean peninsula can be resolved if South Korea and the U.S. respond to our efforts with goodwill, create an atmosphere of peace and stability while taking progressive and synchronous measures for the realisation of peace," Mr. Kim said. Kim Jong-un's predecessors, grandfather Kim Il-sung and father Kim Jong-il, both promised not to pursue nuclear weapons but secretly maintained programmes to develop them, culminating in the North's first nuclear test in 2006 under Kim Jong-Il.

(I) The Haryana wrestler will look to win her second CWG gold medal, and she might be even more motivated after the horrific knee injury she suffered at Rio 2016. "Whatever has happened, it is a thing of the past. The pain (of missing out on the Olympic medal) has somehow decreased now." says Vinesh.
(II) Vinesh chose to train at Lucknow along with other National campers, seek support from professionals in mental conditioning, recovery and nutrition from Olympic Gold Quest. According to OCG, requirements listed were specific and areas like weight management and mind training were targeted.
(III) The 24-year-old from the Phogat family is a very focused and strong-willed individual who knows the exact way to hone her mind and build up her body for the ordeal of competition. A podium finish will heal the scars of surgery post-Rio and make up for a long wait

Q133. Dubai's landscape is highlighted by sandy desert patterns, while gravel deserts dominate much of the southern region of the country.
(I) The flat sandy desert gives way to the Western Hajar Mountains. A vast sea of sand dunes covers much of southern Dubai and eventually leads into the desert known as The Empty Quarter. Seismically, Dubai is in a very stable zone—the nearest seismic fault line, the Zagros Fault, is 200 kilometres (124 miles) from the UAE and is unlikely to have any seismic impact on DubaI. Experts also predict that the possibility of a tsunami in the region is minimal because the Persian Gulf waters are not deep enough to trigger a tsunamI.
(II) Dubai has no natural river bodies or oases; however, Dubai does have a natural inlet, Dubai Creek, which has been dredged to make it deep enough for large vessels to pass through. Dubai also has multiple gorges and waterholes, which dot the base of the Western Al Hajar mountains.
(III) The sand consists mostly of crushed shell and coral and is fine, clean and white. East of the city, the salt-crusted coastal plains, known as sabkha, give way to a north-south running line of dunes. Farther east, the dunes grow larger and are tinged red with iron oxide.

(d) all of the above
(e) none of the above

Q134. For a given capacity, more number of cylinders is capable of producing more power.

(I) More cylinders mean more piston area and the increased piston area permits an increase in the total valve area, allowing more air and fuel to be drawn into the engine, and the shorter stroke permits higher revs at the same piston speed, allowing the engine to pump still more air and fuel with the potential to produce more power, but with more fuel consumption too.

(II) As you increase the number of cylinders, each piston (and its associated rod and crank journal) gets smaller and lighter. Lighter parts can rev higher, if they're built right resulting in more power

(III) Even if the engine capacities are same for a motorcycle, the engine with a greater number of cylinders will be more capable because a comparable bore to stroke ratios are employed, an engine with more cylinders will have a greater piston area and a shorter stroke.

(a) only (I)
(b) only (II)
(c) both (II) and (III)
(d) All of the above
(e) none of the above

Q135. Confidence is growing around the world that India can take on China in the future.

(I) The countries of Southeast Asia are divided among themselves about the virtues of growing closer to China, while Australia is split internally over the same question. Europe is distant, Russia a reluctant Chinese ally. Relations with China have not been good enough financially for Kazakhstan too.

(II) The unfortunate truth is that, however worthy this objective or sincere its expression, India's actions speak otherwise. Its diplomats and strategists continue to dither about whether or not balancing or containing China should be India's strategic objective. More importantly, the government isn't funding the military capability it would need to manage China's rise. India is short of cash and it is, unfortunately, starving its military.

(III) Only one country seems eager to deal with the ramifications of China's rise: India. Across dozens of world capitals, confidence is repeatedly expressed that India will seek, in the decades to come, to balance China. And in no capital, is this sentiment expressed more loudly than India's own.

(a) only (I)
(b) only (III)
(c) only (II)
(d) all of the above
(e) (II) and (III)

Q146. Suffering is part of the natural order of the universe. At all levels in nature we see the struggle for survival, growth and decay, emergence of new life and a return to earth of what is biodegradable. Lacking the machinations of a mind, the order of creation just below humans does not cry out in anguish at its loss and destruction. Its passing away or transformation when it occurs, takes place often unnoticed, but always without complaint. _____
(a) Death and destruction is never "avenged".
(b) Suffering came to be seen as punishment, sickness was often considered to be a consequence of sin.
(c) It has been aptly said that suffering not transformed, is suffering transmitted.
(d) The energy locked in our victimhood is released for our own good and that of others.
(e) None of these

Q147. Floodplains are formed over millions of years by the flooding of rivers and deposition of sand on riverbanks. These sandy floodplains are exceptional aquifers where any withdrawal is compensated by gravity flow from a large surrounding area. Some floodplains such as those of Himalayan rivers contain up to 20 times more water than the virgin flow in rivers in a year. _____If we conserve and use the floodplain, it can be a self-sustaining aquifer wherein every year, the river and floodplain are preserved in the same healthy condition as the year before.
(a) It would also generate substantial revenue for the cities.
(b) This is the philosophy of "conserve and use".
(c) Preserving the floodplain in its entirety is critical for this scheme to work.
(d) Since recharge is by rainfall and during late floods, the water quality is good.
(e) None of these

Q148. As search engines and algorithms replace encyclopaedias and libraries, tools like Elias are bound to become a more salient part of teaching. After all, memory has been outsourced since the written word came into place and an android is merely an engaging vessel through which children can access AI and internet-based learning software. _____. Freed from the dissemination of knowledge, assisted in assessing students, teachers can direct their attention to individual students who need it, and provide perspective rather than facts. If nothing else, Elias might free them from the tyranny of the young's "why". After all, impatience is all too human.

(d) It is worrying because it reflects an increasing alienation between North and South in political discourse.
(e) Resistance to this will take the form of greater regional assertion.

Q149. Renegotiating balance of power and new forms of cultural identity are all routine activities in politics. But they acquire more explosive potential when this negotiation takes place under three conditions: The political existence of a project of cultural hegemony, a fluid party system at the state level, and greater state centralisation. Right now this discontent seems only fleeting. But it would be a mistake to reduce it to the mere technicalities of a Finance Commission mandate. _____. And it would be a mistake to underestimate how quickly cultural anxieties can snowball into a potent political force, in an age marked by fragile and uncertain identities on the one hand, and mean and ungenerous leaders on the other.
(a) It is worrying because it reflects an increasing alienation between North and South in political discourse.
(b) The discontent may not seem significant now.
(c) There is more psychological and cultural anxiety fueling it.
(d) The southern gauntlet is just an opening salvo.
(e) Southern politics has itself been stuck in a rut.

Q150. When banks insure a farmer, they go by his declaration at the time of making the KCC and insure accordingly. There is no attempt to verify which crop has been actually planted and there is no system of asking the farmer to fill some form for crop insurance. As a result, when a crop loss is reported, there is a dispute between the farmer and the insurance company. It is catch 22 situation. On the one hand, the banker cannot name any other crop other than declared in the KCC, for a change would cause the invalidation of the card. On the other, on the farm there is some other crop which needs to be insured for the claims to be processed by the insurer. _____
(a) This brings me to DBT in fertiliser subsidy.
(b) The KCC is necessary to procure good quality inputs to raise productivity and production.
(c) This will ensure better targeting and encourage digital transactions.
(d) Some fear the farmers may misuse the crop loan if it is not linked to the scale of finance.
(e) The result is that the farmer refuses to get his crop insured.
