A quote is given in this question after which a statement has been given. Read the quotation carefully and determine the statement based on the given quotation.

It is believed that Saint Nicholas aka Santa Claus was considered to be a modern era in Turkey (then considered to be part of ancient Greece) about 300 B.C. Lived in Patara. He was a great pastor of Myra, who was famous for giving good work among the poor, love for children and gifts to the needy. They are usually portrayed as a slim figure in their religious office wearing red and gold. They look beautiful with pictures like traditional halo - which signify good deeds, stick or a Bible or both. Here is a glimpse of the development story from a religious icon (icon) of Santa Claus, to becoming the divine prophet of Northern Dharma.

13th century: Bishop Nicholas of Myra was declared a saint in the first millennium. By the 13th century, in honor of them, the Dutch used to celebrate a tradition of putting coins in boots left outside the homes of the poor. After doing so, he used to say that St. Nicholas did all this. In time, Saint Nicholas became a sinterclass and now, the official Sinterklas white clothing of the Netherlands, a red color clock and a bishop-shaped weakling figure in royal long white hair and beard. Incidentally, it travels by a white horse.

16th Century: St. Nicholas is now popular all over Europe. The Dutch Sinterklas have become Santa Claus in many areas. Every year, the feast of St. Nicholas or Santa Claus is celebrated on December 6, which is the death anniversary of the original Bishop of Myra (the year is not set, but there is no dispute on the date).

Statement: 6th December, the death anniversary of St. Nicholas is celebrated as a feast for Santa Claus.

A quote is given in this question after which a statement has been given. Read the quotation carefully and determine the statement based on the given quotation.

It is believed that Saint Nicholas aka Santa Claus was considered to be a modern era in Turkey (then considered to be part of ancient Greece) about 300 B.C. Lived in Patara. He was a great pastor of Myra, who was famous for giving good work among the poor, love for children and gifts to the needy. They are usually portrayed as a slim figure in their religious office wearing red and gold. They look beautiful with pictures like traditional halo - which signify good deeds, stick or a Bible or both. Here is a glimpse of the development story from a religious icon (icon) of Santa Claus, to becoming the divine prophet of Northern Dharma.

13th century: Bishop Nicholas of Myra was declared a saint in the first millennium. By the 13th century, in honor of them, the Dutch used to celebrate a tradition of putting coins in boots left outside the homes of the poor. After doing so, he used to say that St. Nicholas did all this. In time, Saint Nicholas became a sinterclass and now, the official Sinterklas white clothing of the Netherlands, a red color clock and a bishop-shaped weakling figure in royal long white hair and beard. Incidentally, it travels by a white horse.

16th Century: St. Nicholas is now popular all over Europe. The Dutch Sinterklas have become Santa Claus in many areas. Every year, the feast of St. Nicholas or Santa Claus is celebrated on December 6, which is the death anniversary of the original Bishop of Myra (the year is not set, but there is no dispute on the date).

Statement: In the thirteenth century, Dutch Sinterklas became Santa Claus in many areas.
